

Ivory-Billed Woodpecker

Introduction

Would you want to see a very rare bird that you can barely see now then read this. Did you know that the Ivory-Billed Woodpecker was extinct till 1952? I hope you enjoy my bird essay and learn about the Ivory-Billed Woodpecker.

Description

The Ivory-Billed Woodpecker has a shiny black and blue in color and white marks on its neck and wings. Its size is from 18-20 inches tall.

Young

Ivory-Billed Woodpeckers are usually born in a cypress. After they are born they live with their parents for a month. After a month they leave their home and go on their own. They usually lay 3-5 glossy white eggs per clutch.

Habitat and Food

The Ivory-Billed Woodpecker lives in a small area of the U.S.A and half of Cuba. They eat insects or small bugs. They usually live in a cypress tree.

Conclusion

In conclusion the Ivory-Billed Woodpecker is a very rare bird. I think we should bring them back from the brink of extinction. I learned that the Ivory-Billed Woodpecker was extinct till 1952. I hope you learned about the Ivory-Billed Woodpecker like I did.

BYE!!!!!!!!!!!!!!